

The images in the 2017 COLLECTORS PRINT SPECIALS are selected from my Olson House portfolio. Andrew Wyeth documented life on this isolated, saltwater farm. He painted Christina, Alvaro and their home as symbols of Maine. I photograph the Olson House because of the light pouring in from the oversized windows, bouncing off the hard surfaces of the rooms. Without the life and vitality of the Olsons, the house lost its appeal for Wyeth and he searched for new inspiration. For me, the inspiration continues as the spectral presence of the past weaves in and out of the light. Different artists . . . different muses.

The Olson House was gifted to the Farnsworth

Museum in 1991. The contents of the house had been removed, including the stove, and the house stood worn and silent. I made Kitchen Doors, Olson House, Cushing, ME, (Structure, Pl. 34) in 1992. It was a very cold, clear winter day. The light from the window cast this beautiful shadow of the dried hanging plant in the window but I was as intrigued by the label left hanging from an old picture hook.
